We are the consulting and enterprise support division of Microsoft.

We want to help businesses around the world get the best return on their investment in Microsoft products and technologies. We do this in two ways: First, we support our IT partners with shared knowledge through the Services Ready Program. And second, we work directly with our customers on architecture and planning services to help business move forward with IT initiatives that deliver the most business value by deploying and optimizing IT services and managed support services to proactively manage the health of the IT landscape.
